For Solicitors/Career Management/Career Transitions

A new career direction on the right path

The Brief

- To identify new fulfilling career options in/out of the law.
- To help them to think through the big decision of leaving their current practice group which didn't engage them and the firm into which they had qualified, which was not a good culture-fit for their personality type.

Our Role

- Helped them to understand what they really wanted from their future career using various career coaching exercises.
- Shared new career options and roles that both played to their strengths and interests within the legal profession and outside the law.
- Acted as a sounding board to help them to carefully think through their career options and whether to leave their current firm.

The Result

- They chose to do a 1 year full time further qualification as a stepping stone to reposition their career direction in an area of interest to them.
- They resigned from their law firm with inner confidence and conviction that it was the right decision for them.
